

Customizing Social Media Posts

Can I remove the "Posted by Blog2Social" stamp from my Facebook posts?

Posts sent to Facebook Profiles and Groups via Blog2Social display a link labeled with "Blog2Social". This is not a tag-line, but a compulsory labeling requirement for third party apps on Facebook and is automatically marked by Facebook.

When you publish a post to a Facebook Page, a "Posted by Blog2Social" stamp will be displayed, but this stamp is only visible for you as admin or editor of this page. This labeling is not visible for the visitors of your Facebook Page.

What about the other social networks?

On Twitter will be also displayed the "Posted by Blog2Social" next to your published post. In this case, the stamp is visible for you as admin or editor of this page, as well as for the visitors of your Twitter profile.

For other social networks below there is no labeling, or link that will show that you're posting with Blog2Social:

- LinkedIn (Profiles or Pages)
- XING (Profiles, Pages or Groups)
- Instagram
- Pinterest
- Flickr
- Medium
- Tumblr
- Torial
- Diigo
- Bloglovin
- Reddit
- Google My Business
- VK
- Telegram
